

INVESTOR UPDATE

Dear Shareholder,

Thank you for taking the time to request additional investor information from Ableauctions. This message is to notify you of recent insider trades and Form 4's filed with the SEC.

Like other investors, officers and directors of the Company may trade their stock, either to take advantage of good market conditions or because they are in need of funds for personal reasons. They report these trades within two days of the date the trades are made. You may view these reports (Form 4) at the Securities and Exchange Commission website.

Typically, officers and directors cannot trade their securities when they are in possession of "inside" (that is, non-public) information that may effect the price of the stock. Therefore, you may notice that officers and directors trade within a few days following the Company's filing of its quarterly or annual reports on Form 10-QSB or 10-KSB with the Securities and Exchange Commission, since these forms will usually disclose previously undisclosed information relating to the Company and its operations.

Officers and directors may also establish certain trading plans with their brokers, pursuant to Rule 10b5-1 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. These plans allow officers and directors to deposit their stock with brokers, who then control the timing of the trades on the basis of pre-approved agreements.

The members of our Board of Directors are not given cash compensation, however, the Company has granted them stock and stock options in payment for their services. As there is no prohibition against trading by officers and directors of the Company, so long as they do not trade using inside information, you should expect that, on occasion, trades will be made by these individuals for the reasons noted above.

The amount of stock sold or allocated to a plan by an insider may vary from the number of shares registered. To determine how much stock an insider has sold, view the Form 4's on the SEC website.

Warm Regards,

“Thorsten Bonn”

THORSTEN BONN

For further information, please contact Investor Relations at investorrelations@ableauctions.com